WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF
PURE COD LIVER
OIL AND LIME.

GET THE GENUINE ARTICLE.—The great popularity of Wilbor's Compound of Cod Liver Oil and Lime has induced some unprincipled persons to attempt to palm off a simple article of their own manufacture, but any person who is suffering from Coughs, Colds or Consumption, should be careful where they purchase this article. It requires no puffing. The results of its use are its best recommendations; and the proprietor has ample evidence on file of its great success in pulmonary complaints. The Phosphate of Lime possesses a most marvellous healing power, as combined with the pure Cod Liver Oil by Dr. Wilbor. It is prescribed by the medical faculty. Sold by A. B. Wilbor, Chemist, Boston, and all druggists.

Where the Fire is Out.

"Haroun of Aleppo," said Sir Philip Derval, "had mastered every secret in nature which the nobler magic seeks to fathom. He discovered that the true art of healing is to assist Nature to throw off the disease, to summon, as it were, the whole system to eject the enemy that has fastened on a part. His processes all included the reinvigoration of the principle of life."
In this the Eastern sage merely anticipated the practice of the best physicians of to-day. What life itself is nobody knew then—nobody knows now. But we have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious tide rises and falls. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical science can always relieve, and often save. Yet no reputable physician now adheres to the barbarous and stupid processes of depletion, such as bleeding, by which it was attempted to cure disease by reducing the patient's ability to resist it. Now-a-days we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison; we strengthen it. In this intelligent and beneficent work it is conceded that PARKER'S TONIC leads all other medicines. As an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs of digestion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. It follows that all ailments of the stomach, kidneys and liver are at once relieved or cured. No other preparation embodies the same qualities or produces similar results. It is delicious to use, and the best known anti-[illegible] cant. Price 50c and $1. HISCOX & CO., New York.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Lewiston Journal says: An insane woman in the Barker Mill district got afoul of the fire alarm box 63, Wednesday morning, and the result was the three strokes of the bell at City Hall. For three months the woman has been subject to a pitiable mania. Sane at times, she has become firmly convinced that one of her dead children was locked up in the alarm box near her house. Her attentions towards the box have been marked all winter. She has been ever solicitous for its comfort. If cold weather came, she has poured hot water on the box to keep it warm. She has put clothing around it. Her mania got the better of her Wednesday morning. She seized an axe, and with fury rushed for the box. She broke it open and started the alarm with one of the blows of the axe. The tinkling bell within the box had struck three times in unison with the alarm bell when the next blow of the axe cut the connection and the alarm stopped. The woman struggled with her axe against her friends who attempted to disarm her. She wept bitterly that they would not let her reach the child. She protested that the baby was inside. She was disarmed and taken to the lockup.

A little son of Mr. Thomas Nimmo, of Portland, while playing at home, Wednesday, fell into a boiler of scalding water. The physician cannot tell whether the child will survive or not. The boy is only three years old.

The Oxford Bears have decided on April 18th for their reunion. Mayor Charles Walker, T. H. King and Henry Wiggin, of Portland, were appointed dinner committee, and Gen. J. J. Perry and E. S. Osgood committee on extending invitations outside the limits of the society.

John H. Dow, George F. Holmes, John O. Rice and Edmund J. Young, of Portland, have been elected members of the Webster Historical Society of Massachusetts.

The Augusta Journal says: The discovery of the insecure condition of the cul[illegible]

vert on the railroad, Tuesday afternoon was a timely one, and possibly averted a bad accident. The culvert is on a stream just above Haley's ice houses. Tuesday forenoon one of the employes of the road on the 10 o'clock passenger train, felt the cars settle as they passed over. He reported the fact at the South Gardiner station on arriving. A wrecking train stopped at the culvert in the afternoon to investigate. Hardly a blow had been struck with a pick, when the entire culvert caved in. It took three hours to repair the damage.

Subscriptions are being sought for building a skating rink and public hall in Gardiner. If $8,000 can be assured, a stock company will be organized and the building erected.

Knox.

People cannot be too careful in the use of firearms. A young man near Owl's Head aimed a gun at a friend the other day and discharged it. The weapon was loaded with powder, which burned the fellow's face, and the wadding struck his arm, cutting through his shirt. The affair was one of criminal carelessness and [illegible] and cannot be too severely censured.

J. T. Southard, Esq., of Richmond, has presented the Knights of Pythias with a bronze life-sized statue of himself. It is to be placed in their Castle Hall.

The Citizen's Building Association of Richmond, still owns the new opera house notwithstanding the report of its presentation to the town by T. J. Southard, who is president of the association.

Somerset.

News of a shocking nature was received from Florida last week, concerning the family of J. S. Chase, formerly of Skowhegan, who recently removed to Norwalk, says the Reporter. The 8th inst., the young daughter, Lillie, was building a fire with kerosene, when the stove burst, burning her horribly. The mother, in attempting to extinguish the flames, burned both hands severely, and, in the excitement, fell the length of a flight of stairs, striking on her shoulder and receiving other injuries. It was thought at first the daughter would not recover, but later accounts are more hopeful.

Jotham Fogg, Esq., who died at Schuyler, Neb., March 5th, aged 88, was a member of the largest family that ever lived in Cornville, consisting of nine sons and eight daughters, says the Somerset Reporter. Mr Fogg commanded the military company of Cornville, and was in the war of 1812. He built and run the first hotel at Mt. Kineo, and afterwards run what is now the Lake House, at Greenville. About the year 1842 he was chosen to represent his district in the Legislature of this State. He removed to Nebraska in 1871, where he has since resided.

Mr. Grinnell, proprietor of the Searsport House, drove from Belfast to Searsmont and back on Friday, putting up his team at the American House stable. While there the horse suddenly died. The animal was worth $150.

Washington.

Mrs. Mary Bensdin, at Northfield, died suddenly March 13. She was about the house in usual health and fell, dying instantly.

A letter recently received at Pembroke, by Messrs. Hobert & Co., from Captain Pattangall, of barque "Syra," then loading at Rosario, Argentine Republic, for Boston, states that Sanford Smith, steward of that vessel, and a resident of Pembroke, disappeared one day soon after calling the officers and crew to dinner. He left his belongings untouched, not taking a coat or his watch.

Now for Victory

To-day the citizens of Bangor have their final opportunity to decide at the polls whether they prefer as their next Mayor the Hon. S. F. Humphrey or the present incumbent. With these two candidates to choose from it ought not to be a difficult matter to decide which is likely to give the best administration of the affairs of the city. The one first commends himself to the thoughtful voters as a gentleman in every way fitted for the office, one in whom every business man has the most implicit confidence and whose every attribute places him in the foremost rank of those whom our city has honored in the past. A gentleman of spotless reputation, courteous and affable in all his relations with his fellow citizens, Judge Humphrey's election would reflect the highest honor upon the city of Bangor in this her semi-centennial year.

Of the present incumbent his acts speak for themselves. Possessed of no qualifications that even recommend him to his own party, he has, from the very moment he first occupied the chair, kept the affairs of the city in a turmoil that has disgusted everyone. Whatever his intentions may have been, his acts certainly indicate that he views the honorable position that he now holds simply as a valued opportunity to reward political friends and punish those whom he cannot control. Almost his first act after taking the oath of office was to place a man in charge of the City Agency whose total unfitness for the place is conceded on every hand, and this too through the removal of a gallant soldier who had conducted the business of that department in a manner that commended itself to every citizen. And so the Mayor has gone through his official term demonstrating at every turn his inability to grasp in the faintest degree the dignity of the proud office he now holds, until the final act in which he and his colleagues conspired to use a less important piece of property than the Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad as a means to punish gentlemen who plainly told Mr. Cummings that they could not support him. No other explanation of the removal of the two gentlemen referred to can be produced. Both business men, strong friends of the road in whose interests they have been untiring in their efforts, the only reason why they should be dropped from the Board of Directors lay in the one fact of their failure to support Mayor Cummings.

We believe that the voters of Bangor will decide to-day that they have had enough of this sort of thing in the administration of their affairs and will elect Judge Humphrey by a handsome majority. Let the Republicans get out their entire strength, catch the voting closely in the several wards, and they will have every reason to feel proud of their day's work.

No matter what the weather may be or how bad the travelling don't let either of these things keep you from the polls.

Vote to-day.

A prominent Bangor lumber dealer said within a month that although he would vote for protection for the present, yet he knew it was only temporary selfishness. He confessed that it only helped him and a few others in the same business, and was of no advantage to the laborer or consumer.—Commercial.

We do not believe that any prominent lumber dealer ever made any such statement. It is but a few weeks since the Commercial announced that a removal of the tariff would only reduce the price of lumber one dollar and as such a reduction would cut down the wages of the laborers to the lowest possible notch, or else close every mill on the river, it is very easy to see that the present protection on lumber is a very great advantage to the laboring man. When the editor of the Commercial endeavors to create the impression that there is not a very strong sentiment in this city against putting lumber on the free list, or that such a step would not injure [illegible], he writes what he knows to be false.

The Republicans should make an effort to get out their voters as early in the day as possible.

That last gun of Mayor Cummings was too heavily charged for his own benefit.

Labor and Protection.

The Commercial not long since published some most remarkable productions on its editorial page in advocacy of its free trade doctrine, which it found is not a popular theme in the State of Maine, and after laying the subject on the shelf for a time it once more breaks forth on the eve of an election in the hope of deceiving some of the laboring classes into voting for Mayor Cummings, on the ground that he is the representative of a policy that is alleged to be in the interest of the workingman. The editor adopts different tactics this time, however, and publishes an article over the signature of "Workingman," which is so full of contradictions that it is almost impossible to follow the masquerader. He admits that in free trade England the laboring classes have to emigrate or starve, and that wages are much higher in this country than there, but says protection has nothing whatever to do with it. This is all nonsense. Let any thoughtful man examine the pages of the history of this country and he will find that every period of prosperity we have enjoyed has been when a system of protection has been in force, and that a period of depression has followed any tampering with those laws. We quote from this history:

The laws of 1789, 1816, 1824 and 1828 were all protective in their character and adopted in part by the same men and under the influence of the authors of the Constitution. The right to impose duties with reference to the protection of American industries was completely established. During this period the rate of duties was steadily advanced, not for revenue only but for protection also, from about six or eight to nearly fifty per cent ad valorem.

Each successive rate promoted the industries of the country. The revenue became too great for the wants of the Government and the sliding scale of 1833 was adopted as an experiment, under the belief that the revenue could be reduced without the destruction of the industries which had grown up under the uniform fostering care of Congress. The revenues were reduced far beyond the wishes of the authors of the scheme, and ruin of our domestic industry and of the public credit followed as its legitimate result, and one of the greatest monetary panics the country has ever known became a reality in 1837.

This experience led logically to the restoration of a higher tariff in 1842, under the influence of which industries revived, prosperity returned, and the Treasury was again amply supplied. But the economic views of the opponents of protection again prevailed, and again the tariff was assailed and again in 1857 came bankruptcy of manufacturers, of trade and of the Federal Treasury. Once more the policy of protection came to the front in 1861 and from that time on the policy has been perpetuated in the legislation of the country.

This system has now been continuously tested for a period of twenty-two years and the result is that the laboring classes of this country are better off to-day than the same class in any other country in the world. The writer of the Commercial article says it is no use to compare wages in this country with those paid in free trade England as it goes to prove nothing. We are not surprised that he objects to the comparison, but when a laboring man thinks of changing his residence he first finds out the scale of wages at the point he proposes to settle, and if they are not higher than at his old home he concludes not to change, the matter of wages being the most important question taken into consideration as regards his future movements. The laboring man looks to England with its system of free trade and sees there lower wages, little work and moral degradation. He turns to the United States where a protective tariff is in force and he finds higher wages, more work, better homes and a general elevation of the laboring classes, therefore he justly decides that he is well satisfied with our present laws. The Commercial writer objects, but nevertheless we propose to place side by side the wages paid in a cotton mill in England and those paid in New York State:

	State of New York.	Bolton.
Card grinders, men, a week	$8 28	$3 50

Mechanics, average	15 00	7 5[illegible]
Engine drivers	18 00	10 2[illegible]

We also give a comparison of the cost of articles of food in New York State and England:

Tea, a pound	40c.	48c.

The supporters of Mayor Cummings are working like beavers and will hesitate at nothing that will increase their chances of success. The only way to frustrate their designs is for the Republicans to be on guard until the votes are all counted.

Let us have an administration that will promote the greatest good of the city and not one that keeps it in a constant state of turmoil.

Every Republican ought to go to the polls to-day and vote for Hon. S. F. Humphrey.

The Richmond Whig says that so far as manufacturing interests are concerned, the State of Virginia to-day has changed places with Massachusetts. A high protective tariff would be of greater national benefit to Virginia in her iron, coal and mineral interests generally, and in the woolen manufactures and the manufacture of all textile fabrics than such a tariff would be to the New England States. The Whig says: "Free trade would be a fraud on Virginia, however artfully disguised, and would prove ruinous to all her interests."

Beware of fraudulent voting to-day.

Vote early.

Public attention is hereby called to Sec. 30, chap. 3 of R. S., with reference to voting with ballots folded: "The person presiding at a town meeting, shall not receive any folded vote, or permit any person before the polls is closed, without consent of the voter, to examine his ballot, on penalty of twenty dollars."

The Republicans in every ward in the city should turn out handsomely to-day and help secure the victory that is within their grasp if every man does his whole duty.

Vote for Hon. S. F. Humphrey.

Let every Republican voter contribute his full share towards this day's work.

If you want a Mayor who will devote his attention to the business affairs of the city instead of keeping his own political fences up, vote for Hon. S. F. Humphrey.

"Eternal vigilance" will be the price of Republican success to-day.

Every Republican understands the importance of the election and should act accordingly.

If the citizens of Bangor want their business affairs properly attended to let them elect Judge Humphrey.

It rests in the power of the Republicans to handsomely elect their standard bearer if they all work together. Will they do it? Let the answer come from the polls through the medium of an old-timed majority.

Mayor Humphrey is the way the people mean to pronounce it next year.

ABILITY TO SAVE.

Nothing a man who is lacking in industry is the ability to save. In the earnestness of character which leads a man to provide for the future. Leave him alone and there is a saying what will become of him. Worries will accumulate upon him in the coming of events upon which he had never calculated; temptations will open to him which he has no nerve power to resist. He may remain honest, but if he does it will be through the force of early habit rather than from any down-right effort of his own. His boat drifts down the river of life without oars, without a rudder. The current may carry him right but the chances are against him. Get that man to insure his life. You won't change his nature suddenly but you will place him under a new influence that is sure to do him good.—Elder Fa. in Toronto Budget.

You will also get him to save something for old age if he takes a policy in the THE CONNECTICUT MUTUAL LIFE, which is the new plan, agrees to pay cash for policies after 10 &c. years.

ACCIDENTS.

The Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York

asks you if it is prudent to make provision for loss of property by fire, and to neglect taking a policy for indemnity against personal injury?

Presidents LINCOLN and GARFIELD died from the results of accidental injuries. Senator WAGNER perished in one of his own palace cars. WILLIAM H. GARRISON lost his life because a rail was not well secured, and people forget the many others who similarly perish.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

SUFFOLK SS. SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT, SEPTEMBER TERM, 1883.

The Globe National Bank of Boston, Plaintiff,

v.

Ferdinand A. Wyman, Trustee and Fayette Shaw and Brackley Shaw, Defendants.

This is a Bill in Equity brought by the Globe National Bank in behalf of itself and of all other creditors of the firm of F. Shaw & Brothers of Boston, Fayette Shaw and Brackley Shaw surviving members of that firm, who shall come in and join in this suit against Ferdinand A. Wyman, Trustee and said Fayette Shaw and Brackley Shaw, reciting the assignments made July 25th, 1883 by said firm and the surviving members thereof to Ferdinand A. Wyman in trust for the benefit of their creditors and representing that creditors of said firm holding claims to the amount of about $5,000,000 have assented to the assignments, that said Wyman has accepted the trusts and taken possession of the property and has converted a large amount of it into money to wit not less than $300,000 which he is ready to distribute among the creditors; that the plaintiffs have requested of the trustee the payment of their proportion of the moneys; that said Wyman is ready and willing to comply with the request but claims that he cannot discover all the creditors or the amount and description of the claims of those creditors who are known to him, and therefore cannot determine to what proportion of the moneys the plaintiffs are entitled; and praying that the Trustee may be ordered to sell and convert into money as speedily as practicable so much of said property as is not already in the form of money, and to render his account of his said trusts, his receipts, expenditures and doings therein and to divide the moneys now in his hands belonging to said trust and the net proceeds as they may be entitled thereto, and that proceeds of such sale or sales, among the said creditors; that notice may be given to all creditors ordering them and each of them to prove their claims against said firm of F. Shaw & Brothers of Boston and its several members and to send within forty days from the date of said order a sworn statement thereof to a special master to be appointed by the Court for the purpose of receiving and determining upon all claims, and that the trust created by said Indenture may be confirmed for the benefit of the plaintiff and other creditors who shall prove their claims according to such notice, and that such creditors who shall not send such sworn statements of their said claims according to said order may be debarred by a decree of this Court, from sharing or interfering in any dividend or dividends declared and paid by said Trustee as aforesaid and for such other and further relief as to the Court shall seem meet and justice and equity shall require.

And now it is ordered that the creditors of the firm of F. Shaw & Brothers and of the surviving members thereof be notified if they shall desire to become parties to this bill and any proceedings upon for and to avail themselves of any benefit they may be entitled to under the assignments set forth in the bill to present and prove their claims against said firm and its members and to send within forty days from the tenth day of March 1884, sworn statements of their said claims and in trust to January 1, 1884, to Henry G. Nichols, Esq., 40 Water St., Boston, Mass., who is hereby appointed a special master to receive and determine upon said claims.

And any creditors of said firm or its members who may desire to object to the bill or any proceeding thereunder are hereby notified to appear before this Court at Boston on Tuesday the 15th day of April A. D. 1884, at a quarter past nine o'clock in the forenoon and show cause if any they have why the prayer of the bill should not be granted and why they should not prove their claims if they desire to avail themselves of the benefit of the assignments set forth in the bill or the property transferred thereby.

And said Trustee is hereby ordered to give notice of this order by publishing an attested copy thereof with a brief abstract of the prayer of the bill once a week for two successive weeks, the last publication to be fifteen days at least before the expiration of said period of forty days in the following newspapers, to wit: the Boston Daily Advertiser and the Boston Herald in Boston in the County of Suffolk and the Norfolk County Gazette at Hyde Park in the county of Norfolk all in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the New York Herald at New York city in the county of New York, the Addison [illegible] Herald at Wells and the Hamilton County [illegible] in the county of Hamilton, the St. Lawrence Herald [illegible] at Prescott in the county of St. Lawrence, the Brushton and the Malone Palladium at Malone in the county of Franklin all in the State of New York, the Hart and Daily Press and the Daily Eastern Argus at Portland in the county of Cumberland, the Whig and Courier at Bangor in the county of Penobscot, the Calais Times at Calais in the county of Washington and the Aroostook Pioneer at Houlton in the county of Aroostook, all in the State of Maine; the St. John's Sun at St. John, and the Capital at Fredericton, both in the Province of New Brunswick, and the Montreal Witness at Montreal, in the Province of Quebec, in the Dominion of Canada.

FROM WASHINGTON

News About the Capital.

The Correct Thing To Do.

WASHINGTON, March 21. The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular prohibiting the disclosure of the sources of information respecting foreign tax [illegible] and frauds upon the revenue. He says such action is not only prejudicial to the interests of the government, but would cause great embarrassment to the Consuls and to the special agents in the execution of their official instructions for the protection of the revenue and is a breach of good faith towards the persons who furnish information.

Statue to Garfield

The President sent to the Senate to-day a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting the estimate funds by Col. Rockwell, Engineer in charge of public buildings and grounds in Washington, of $20,000 for the preparation of a site and the erection of a pedestal for the statue of the late President Garfield, which is to be erected by the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, upon ground to be selected by Congress in the city of Washington. Accompanying the Secretary's communication and Col. Rockwell's estimate is a letter from Gen. Anson G. McCook of the Monument Committee of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, stating that the committee had entered into an arrangement with J. Q. A. Ward, sculptor, to execute the statue of the late President at a cost of $30,000 and asking Congress to appropriate a like sum for the site and pedestal. The Secretary commends the request to the favorable attention of Congress.

FORTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS—First Session.

Senate

WASHINGTON, March 21. The Chair laid before the Senate a message from the President similar to that read yesterday in the House, transmitting a communication from the Secretary of War, giving an estimate of the cost of a pedestal for the Garfield statue, to be erected in Washington by the Society of the Army of the Cumberland.

Mr. Hoar called up his bill increasing the salaries of U. S. District Judges to $5,000 and Mr. Morgan resumed his remarks in opposition to it. The increased salary Mr. Bayard said, was necessary and proper, and he warmly supported it.

Mr. Morgan's amendment was rejected.

Mr. Van Wyck moved to amend the bill by making the salary $4,000, but at two o'clock the motion went over till Monday without decision.

Mr. Blair's Education bill was laid before the Senate, being the unfinished business of yesterday. At the request of Mr. Allison, however, Mr. Blair gave way to permit the consideration of the Deficiency Appropriation bill, which was read three times. The amendments recommended by the Committee on Appropriations were agreed to and the bill was passed.

In the course of his remarks meeting objections to his bill Mr. Blair said he would himself be opposed to grafting on the general Government anything looking like the permanent support of the common schools. Within ten years contemplated by the bill he would secure the education of practically two generations [illegible] of the children get [illegible] years [illegible] school education they get at all.

Messrs. Harrison, Hoar and Blair fell into a discussion of some length as to the [illegible] of some of the sections of the bill.

Mr. Garland (at 4.45 p. m.) moved that the Senate go into executive session, which was agreed to. Before the doors were closed amendments to the pending bill were offered by several Senators in order that they may be printed. One by Mr. Sherman provides that money shall be applied to the education of children without distinction of race or color, and shall be distributed to the counties or school districts in the proportion which the number of illiterate children in such county or district bears to the whole number of illiterate children in the State, and that the assent of the State to the provisions shall be had before the money can be given to it by the United States.

The Senate then went into executive session, and when the doors reopened adjourned until Monday.

House

No attempt was made this morning to call up the bonded extension bill, and the Speaker proceeded to call on the committees for reports of a private character.

At the conclusion of the call, Mr. Money, of Mississippi, Chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post-roads reported the following:

"Resolved, that the charges reflecting on Mr. Ellis, Representative from Louisiana, in connection with the Star Route frauds, recently published, are untrue." Adopted.

The House then at 12.30, went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Cox, of New York in the chair, on the private calendar.

After considering two bills the committee rose formally and Hon. F. H. Funston appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office as Representative from the second district of Kansas to succeed the late D. C. Haskell. The committee then resumed its session.

The greater part of the day was consumed in discussion of the bill for the retirement of Wm. Averill, with the rank and pay of Colonel.

At 4.30 the Committee rose and the following bills were passed: Granting a pension to John A. Crosier; for relief of Sydney Henderson; for relief of Henry J. Blinn; for [illegible] of Joseph N. Thomas; for relief of the heirs of the late Langley B. Cuffey; for relief of the legal representatives of the late Captain J. G. Rod, of Texas.

Mr. Dibrell of Tennessee, moved to commit the Averill bill to the Committee on Military Affairs. Lost, yeas 58, nays 121. The bill passed.

The following petitions were presented and referred:

By Mr. Cox of New York of George [illegible] and 500 other citizens of New York and Brooklyn, against the repeal of the vinegar act.

By Mr. O'Neill of Pennsylvania, of the Maritime Exchange, Philadelphia, asking for ample appropriation for the hydrographic department and for increased efficiency of the [illegible] marine service.

MISSISSIPPI

Mayor Barksdale Badly Shaken.

WASHINGTON, March 21. Mayor E. Barksdale, a member of Congress from Mississippi who, according to some testimony taken by the Copiah County Sub-Committee of the Senate, made a speech at Hazlehurst advising the Democrats to carry Copiah county by the shot gun if necessary, and to hang Buffalo a Republican candidate, was before the Sub-Committee of the Senate on Privileges and Elections this morning and made a statement under oath in his own vindication. He denied the charge in toto. He said that the people of Copiah county had always been characterized by a love of law and order, and in the events of the last election there was nothing inconsistent with that record. He made two speeches in Hazlehurst on the day before the last election, one in the afternoon to a procession of country people on horseback, and the other in the evening to a local Democratic club. He could not remember whether the mounted men of the afternoon procession were armed with shot guns. His attention was called to the statements of witnesses about his speech, and pronounced all assertions that he had encouraged violence false.

Addressing Mayor Barksdale, the witness, Senator Hoar asked: Did you read some resolutions purporting to have been passed after the election at a public meeting?

Yes sir, I have them here.

Well now, may I inquire whether you approve or disapprove of the resolutions?

I will not answer that question further than to say the resolutions have not been properly understood by the public, and have been misrepresented. If you will permit I will refer to them so that my understanding of the purport of your question may be clear. Will you permit me, sir?

No sir, you have stated you decline to answer.

I decline to answer without an explanation of the reasons that influenced my reply. The resolutions are in these words (Witness read the Copiah County resolutions). I regard these resolutions simply as a reply to the threats made by Matthews himself.

Then you mean to say you don't approve of them?

I mean to say they have been misrepresented and my understanding—

My question was not whether the public has been properly informed but whether you approve of the resolutions.

Well, my answer has been given.

Senator Frye—Does he know of any threats made by Matthews? I want to know whether the witness in his statement means to testify that he ever heard Matthews say anything of the kind he has referred to.

The witness said he had not heard Matthews make any threats but had heard of them from others.

Mr. Frye—You have no right as a witness to make that answer, and you know it.

Witness—Well sir, when you say you do not know it, or you did know it, that it is not the manner in which gentlemen address each other.

Mr. Hoar—You say you are familiar with the political history of Mississippi. There is one resolution to the effect that Copiah shakes hands with Yazoo. Do you know what that means?

Well, no sir, I will not undertake to interpret that.

You had no knowledge of the facts?

I had nothing to do with getting up the resolutions.

Do you remember any public fact in the history of Yazoo which might help in interpret that resolution?

I will not answer that question. I will not undertake to interpret that resolution.

Witness in the further course of the colloquy said the people of Yazoo County were law abiding people. He knew of nothing in the history of either Yazoo or Copiah which would compare with the Tewksbury horror.

Mr. Hoar—Then you know all about Witness—I have seen it stated officially. You are acquainted with Tewksbury and am well acquainted with Yazoo.

Pretty well with both and do not know anything so much to the discredit of Yazoo as to Tewksbury.

Senator Hoar expressed the hope that the official investigation of the affairs of Yazoo County would show them to be as false as those respecting Tewksbury.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE

Fourteen Days Between Liverpool and New York—A French Steamer Loses Her Rudder

NEW YORK, March 21. The City of Chester has arrived at her dock, after one of the stormiest voyages she has ever known. She left Liverpool on March 6th and Queenstown on the 7th, and was nearly fourteen days on the ocean. On March 11, 12, 13 and 15, she encountered dangerous seas. On the 12th a seaman was washed overboard while at work in the rigging.

On Sunday last, when 720 miles from Halifax and 1144 miles from New York, the City of Chester sighted a disabled steamer, which proved to be the Chateau Margaux, from Bordeaux, which had lost her rudder and was pitching heavily in the swell. The disabled steamer could not send a boat for assistance, as her captain reported that only eight of his crew of twenty-eight were fit for work. Capt. Land of the City of Chester therefore sent one of the mates and a boat crew, who with difficulty carried a hawser on board. This was repeated three times, but at each attempt the hawser parted. The French captain asked the City of Chester to lay to till the next day, but as the supply of coal was short, and the Chateau Margaux had only six days' coal on board, Capt. Land accordingly proceeded on his way, leaving the French steamer a steel tow rope, and having to cut his own boat adrift, as it was so broken and full of water that it could not be raised to the davits. The Chateau Margaux reported that she had eight days fresh provisions and enough salt provisions to last three months on board.

Against Deputy Warden Kiernan are found four indictments for forgery, in the second degree, charging him with forging the names of alleged employees of the jail in order to draw wages due them. Deputy Sheriff McGarigal is charged with extortion, charging a fee of $26.75 to Wm. Roemer, a prisoner in his custody in January last, when he was only [illegible] to fifty cents. Jacob Wertheimer is charged with perjury, making false affidavits as to the number of prisoners conveyed by him. They all obtained bondsmen and were discharged from custody.

FINNY SEA MONSTERS.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., March 21. There was considerable excitement in this region yesterday over the appearance of a school of monster whales. The excitement extends along the coast all the way from Amagansett to Montauk Point, a distance of 25 miles. The monsters are judged to average from 30 to 50 feet in length.

They were first sighted blowing near this shore on Sunday. The news of their appearance quickly spread. They approached nearer land than they ordinarily do, and are the first whales seen on this part of the coast in years. It is presumed that they drifted down from the Bay of Fundy, around Cape Ann, and may in a few days be seen further westward than this place, which is the extreme eastern township of Long Island, and ends in Montauk Point. Whaling expeditions were organized a few hours after the appearance of the finny giants, and they have been vigorously pursued ever since their appearance without avail. Yesterday at daybreak two of the monsters, which were recognized by old whalemen as a cow and her calf, were sighted blowing about 2 miles off shore in the ocean from the Amagansett life-saving station. The enthusiasm of the old whalers living there being aroused, they soon rallied three whaling crews and pushed out to sea in hot pursuit of Mrs. Whale and her baby, the latter apparently about 15 feet in length.

The chase was kept up all day, being eagerly watched from the shore, but the wary monster and her calf kept out of reach of the rusty harpoons, yet hovered in the vicinity encouraging pursuit. During the day five more crews, making eight in all, put out from this place and Bridgehampton. Finally, towards evening, the pursuers found themselves over 20 miles at sea, and their game almost out of sight. The chase was then abandoned until this morning, when it was resumed, despite the rain and vague chances of success. The thrifty residents of the locality have the fever so bad that they will never abandon hope of capturing a whale so long as one keeps in sight.

UNION STREET METHODIST LYCEUM. The meeting of last Thursday evening was very fully attended, and was one of rare interest throughout. The class examination in "McKenzie's 19th Century" elicited much valuable and interesting information concerning the recovery of the Sandwich Islands from cannibalism and the occupation of India by the British government. The debate on the question "Resolved that early marriages are desirable" was skilfully and wittily conducted by Miss Fannie Dunning and F. C. Ayler on the affirmative, and Miss Louise H. Savage and J. F. Hatch on the negative. The quartettes "Dorothy Cone" and "Golden Shoes" by Messrs. Curtis and Atkins and Mrs. N. F. Bragg and Miss Carrie Reed, and the duet "Cockles and Muscles" by Mr. Curtis and Mrs. Bragg were highly appreciated and enjoyed. The last meeting for the season is to be held next Thursday evening, for which an elaborate programme has been provided. It consists of essays, readings, musical selections and a valedictory. A very enjoyable time is anticipated and everybody is invited.

AMUSEMENTS.

Hermit of Cashel.

The beautiful spectacular opera, Hermit of Cashel, was presented at the Opera House again last evening, this time as a complimentary benefit to Mr. Hardy Newcomb under whose direction the piece has been given in our city. A numerous and very appreciative audience was assembled and applause was bestowed liberally. The solos and choruses were smoothly rendered and the opera passed off very finely. The Quaker song was warmly received and the scarf dance by the little misses, Mildred Marston and Edith [illegible] was very beautiful, forming a most attractive feature of the evening's entertainment. Some new scenes were introduced and the calcium light added much to the effect. The grand transformation scene was a most fitting close to an entertainment of deep interest. The various participants are all deserving of credit and particular praise is due Mr. Newcomb who has labored zealously to provide the people with pleasant and elevating amusement.

Crusade Festival.

There was a large attendance at the Crusade festival in City Hall, last evening and the occasion was much enjoyed by those participating. Refreshments were furnished in profuse quantities and each person was presented with some memento of the evening. The following programme was given a very acceptable rendition: Piano solo, Katie Perkins; recitation, [illegible] Hodge; "Scandal," Sadie Foot and Carrie Leonard; Courting Song between a Quaker and Presbyterian, Leslie and Orville Danforth; recitation, Blanche Hayes; song, "Milk Maid," Willie Reed and Carrie Leonard; piano duet, Misses Nettie and Emma Prescott; recitation, Maud Clayton; recitation, George Cook; song, Mildred Cates and Mamy Lamson; recitation, Cora Frost; song, Mr. Gordon; dialogue, "Advertising for Help," participated in by eight young ladies, and a German solo by Ida Hoffman. The entertainment was received enthusiastically.

Joseph Murphy.

Mr. Murphy is one of the few dialect artists of his nationality who does not offend by broad caricature and grotesque vulgar action. If there can be said to be such a thing as an artistic dialect, he possesses it. He has all the humor, without descending to coarseness, and his emotional manifestations are kept within the limits which good taste and dramatic earnestness demand. The story of the drama which Mr. Marsden has delicately prepared for his artistic presentation is deficient in none of the elements that render it acceptable to an audience who can appreciate broad Irish humor, without tasting any of the extravagances which are occasionally indulged in by many of Mr. Murphy's stage contemporaries. "Kerry Gow" is an agreeable and romantic story, and contains incidents sufficient to afford all the situations to make it acceptable to all classes of spectators, without giving the least offence to any of them. Seats are selling rapidly both for "Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue," and there is every prospect of large audiences on both occasions. Mr. Murphy is universally recognized as one of the standard attractions, and his performances please all classes [illegible] with the occupants of gallery and orchestra circle.

The Grand Army Camp Fire at Bucksport.

The Camp Fire given by James E. Hall Post 53, G. A. R., at Bucksport, Thursday evening last, was a success, notwithstanding the non-attendance of several prominent comrades, who had been invited. A large delegation from B. H. Beale Post 12, Bangor, under command of Capt. F. A. Garnsey, Adjutant of the Post, accompanied by a portion of Daniel Chaplin Camp 3, Sons of Veterans, Capt. Sewall Brown, arrived on the evening train, and were received and escorted by James E. Hall Post 53, of Bucksport, A. L. Conant, Commander, to Emery Hall which was handsomely decorated for the occasion.

Immediately on the arrival of the visiting Post, rations were issued, after which the exercises of the evening were held, consisting of Selection by the Band; War Song by the Choir; Reading, "Home Sweet Home," by Mrs. Lewis Tapley, followed by the Toasts of the evening, Adjutant R. P. Hill of Post 53, Toastmaster: "Our Country," response by the Band; "State of Maine," by Hon. Parker Spofford; "Department of Maine, G. A. R.," by Department Inspector John F. Foster; Song by Choir; "B. H. Beale Post 12," responded by Surgeon H. F. Hanson; "Dan'l Chaplin Camp, S. of V.," Capt. Sewall Brown; Song, "The Sons of Veterans, of Bucksport," response by Fred S. Ward; [illegible] "Marching Through Georgia"; "Our Comrades the Nation's Dead," responded by Lt. E. S. Wardwell and remarks by Comrade Keefe, of Wm. H. H. Rice Post [illegible], Ellsworth, and others, closing by a fine piece from the Band.

After the exercises at the Hall, the comrades adjourned to Grand Army Hall, where a Bummer's convention was held. At 5.10 A. M. Friday the comrades of B. H. Beale Post and the Sons of Veterans were escorted to the train by the Bucksport comrades and departed for home. Four tables were well provided with army beans and arranged to seat 250. The gallery was filled by spectators.

MR. ANDREWS' TESTIMONIAL

A Very Brilliant Social Event

The testimonial to Mr. M. H. Andrews took place at Music Hall, last evening, and was one of the most brilliant social events of the season. Very gratifying to Mr. Andrews must have been this large and splendid gathering, it being a high compliment to his popularity. To all present it was a season of great enjoyment and will long be held in pleasant memory.

The music was by Andrews' full orchestra and was very fine, eliciting warm commendation. The floor was ably managed by a committee comprising Messrs. F. H. Small, F. W. Hersey, C. F. Hill, F. [illegible] Sterns and S. W. Jones. About sixty couples participated in the festivities which were of an exceedingly enjoyable character, and, although dancing was kept up until a late hour, the delightful occasion came to a close all too soon. At intermission choice refreshments were served by Messrs. Jacques & Schweizer.

The ball was a full dress affair and the scene presented from the galleries was brilliant indeed. The costumes of the ladies were elaborate and very elegant, while the gentlemen were arrayed in the customary dress suits. Some of the dresses worn by the ladies were particularly fine and attracted much attention.

A TOUCHING CASE

THE LIFE OF A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN SAVED

A young and beautiful married lady residing in this city was lying at the point of death, with diphtheria, and was not expected to live but a few moments, the husband, father and mother of the suffering lady were by the bedside, as was also the attending physician, so certain were they of the near approach of death, that certain arrangements had already been made to meet the sad event. The father and mother were State of Maine people, and had known from childhood of the wonderful curative power of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. At the suggestion of the grief stricken mother, the father had gone to the nearest drug store before daylight, and obtained a bottle, and when the physician arrived and stated that the [illegible] could not possibly live but a few minutes, the mother timidly told the doctor that she had great faith in Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, and asked if she should give her daughter some. The doctor replied "Certainly, if you wish. It can do no harm." While this conversation was taking place the young wife was gasping for breath, and it was evident that she could live but a few moments longer. But the mother quickly uncorked the bottle and gave a teaspoonful of it to her child. The effect was like magic. In an instant the passage to the lungs was enlarged, she could breathe a little easier, the mother quickly began to bathe the throat externally, and in a short time all present saw that the crisis had passed. In a few hours the patient was considered out of danger, and in a few days was well. The husband of this lady related these facts with tearful eyes to Mr. Jennings, of the firm of I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House street. He said there could be no question whatever but what this Liniment had saved his wife's life. All persons who will send their address to I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House street, Boston, Mass., will receive free, by mail, information of great value in respect to diphtheria, and all the throat and lung troubles.

Una and the Lion.

In this season when yellow fogs prevail, London is a dreary abode for artists; so, at least, thought Cecil Anstruther as he looked at his unfinished pictures, and feared to touch them, lest his brush should carry into them somewhat of the surrounding gloom. He was feeling very dejected when there came a note from Lady Eleanor Carstairs, the wife of one of his kindest patrons, asking him to escort her to a concert in St. James' Hall. "I can't use my eyes to any advantage, so I will try to receive consolation through my ears," he said, and accordingly went to the concert.

For half an hour, carried away by the music, he forgot, not merely his pictures and his troubles, but everything around him too, and only knew that his ear was being satisfied with almost perfect harmony of sound. Suddenly something made him look up at the left-hand side of the third row in the orchestra, and instantly the artist's eye was attracted by two faces of singular beauty, absolutely alike in features and expression, although one was that of a young man, the other that of a girl. Each had wavy light brown hair, a broad white forehead, dark eyes, a finely moulded nose and chin, and a mouth that told of firmness and decision. Both were leaning slightly forward in the self-same attitude, and appeared to be entirely entranced by the music.

It ceased at length, and Cecil withdrew his eyes for a moment as he joined in the applause. When he looked back again he could scarcely believe that those were the same two faces he had been gazing upon before, so changed were they now, so utterly unlike each other in expression. The fixed look of rapt attention, which had made them almost seem as though carved in stone, had passed from both faces. Over the girl's countenance, as she turned to speak to her brother, played a bright and tender smile, softening and irradiating a beauty which before had seemed somewhat stern and cold. But the stern lines about the young man's mouth had deepened, and there were others now visible upon his brow that told of sorrow, suffering, and care. Evidently the habitual gloom of his expression had only been chased away for a few moments by the charm of the music.

One of Beethoven's symphonies again struck the same chord of feeling in the two souls, and the two faces grew strangely alike again, when it ceased they changed once more.

Who could they be? What was the life story that had so marked the man's face? Cecil found himself wondering. Hitherto he had been too much self-centered; never had his interest been so deeply stirred before.

Lady Eleanor thought him rather absent as he took her to the carriage and drove back with her; she feared that her plan for distracting his mind from his woes had not succeeded, little dreaming that by means of it had been granted to him an inspiration that was to raise and purify his whole future life.

He went home to make vain endeavors to put on canvas the two faces that had so much attracted him, and when Saturday came round he took his seat betimes in the orchestra of St. James' Hall, hoping to catch another glimpse of the lovely maiden and her melancholy brother. Nor was he disappointed; there they were below him, where he could gaze upon them comfortably without attracting their attention. It was well for him that he was so placed, for if the brother chanced to notice that any one was staring at his sister he rewarded the attention with a wrathful look that was almost enough to terrify the offender. Cecil did not fail to notice this, and in his mind named the pair, "Una and the Lion."

On the next Saturday he went before the orchestra door was opened, waited until they came, and, determined to brave "the Lion's" wrath, took the seat next to him. He then bought one of the sixpenny books of the music, and finding that his neighbor did not do so, ventured to ask if he would like to see it before the concert began.

"The Lion" was on the point of gruffly rejecting the civility, when "fair Una" leant forward and said pleasantly, "Oh, thank you, I should like to see it very much;" and her surly guardian was forced to take the book.

While she was looking at it he cast sidelong glances at the presumptuous mortal who had ventured to address him. The inspection proved satisfactory, for Cecil Anstruther, though poor, came of a good old family, and in look and bearing he was every inch a gentleman. This the other could not help seeing, and, repenting of his rudeness, he condescended, as he handed back the book, to make some remarks upon the music.

During the intervals between the pieces Cecil followed up his advantage; and when the concert was over and they left the hall the three were engaged in so interesting a conversation that, as their homeward road went for some time in the same direction, it was a good while before they separated. By this time Cecil, always frank and open, had told his new acquaintances that he was a painter, and at parting he gave the young man his card, and begged that he would pay him a visit if ever he were in the neighborhood of his studio; he had also heard that the Christian name of the other was Geoffrey, but his surname he did not discover, nor "Una's" real Christian name, nor the place of their abode. Much astonished was he, therefore, when on Monday afternoon a card bearing the inscription "Mr. Geoffrey Carew," was brought in to him. He had the presence of mind hastily to cover the portrait of Mr. Geoffrey Carew's sister, on which he had been feasting his eyes, before his friend of Saturday walked in.

Of course Cecil was delighted to see him. They talked at first on general subjects, then Mr. Carew inspected the pictures that surrounded him, and Cecil felt that he had seldom had a critic more keen to appreciate both the merits and defects of his painting; but while he was in agony lest he should raise the cover of the easel that stood in the middle of the room. Luckily, however, Mr. Carew did not even ask the subject of the picture, supposing that it was some unfinished thing which the artist did not wish to exhibit.

At last, as he was leaving, with an effort which bespoke him unused to asking favors, he said, "Mr. Anstruther, you mentioned yesterday that you had a number of acquaintances in musical circles in London; and one of my reasons for coming here to-day was to ask if you thought it possible that you could help me to get a situation as organist in some church where I should only be wanted on Sundays and week-day evenings, my days, as I told you, are occupied."

Cecil felt a great pity for his visitor as he saw the proud hot blood mount to his forehead, and guessed that it was a new thing for Geoffrey Carew to have to think of working so hard to earn his daily bread. He promised to do his utmost to help him, and with a hearty grasp of the hands the young men separated.

Cecil made many inquiries about the organist's situation, but without hearing of anything that would suit; and at last, two or three Sundays after, he thought that instead of writing to report his ill success, he would go himself to the address which Mr. Carew had given him. He found his way to a dull street in an unfashionable quarter of the town; but, somehow the house that bore the number he was looking for seemed much the least dingy in the row.

The servant that opened the door said that Mr. Carew was very ill, but that her mistress was within, and showed Cecil into a poorly furnished sitting-room. In a few minutes Mrs. Carew entered, greeted her visitor with stately courtesy, and said that her son would like to see him if he did not mind coming upstairs. By the way, she told him that the doctor said it would be a long time before his patient got well again, that he had lost his situation, and was in low spirits.

Cecil was shocked to find him looking years older than he had done before. He was too weak to bear a long visit, though he seemed pleased to see Cecil, who, after chatting pleasantly to him for ten minutes, took his leave, promising to call again soon.

It was not long before he paid a second visit, and finding himself made welcome, he went whenever his time permitted him. Little by little he learnt something of the Carew's story.

Geoffrey's father had inherited a fine old property, which had belonged to his family for many generations, but owing to [illegible] extravagance had been obliged to mortgage the land heavily. He had never been fond of business, and finding his involved affairs difficult to manage, had gradually intrusted them to an agent, on whom he relied completely. This agent proved dishonest, and while making his own fortune ruined his employer completely; then he disappeared from the scene, leaving the old man to his fate.

Not until the crash came and the mortgages were foreclosed, had Geoffrey, who was then at Oxford, the faintest idea that anything was amiss. He hastened home, and three days after old Mr. Carew died suddenly.

When his affairs were settled, his widow and children found that all the land must go except one small farm; that brought in a rent of £200 a year. Geoffrey obtained a clerk's situation, and his salary added £100 a year to their income. They had managed to pass the first year of their poverty without getting into debt. Now, however, Cecil saw that they were growing anxious. Geoffrey could not work, and the doctor would have to be paid.

The invalid gained a little physical strength perhaps, but now that he was laid up, and had nothing to divert his mind from his troubles, grief at the privations which his mother and two sisters had to suffer preyed upon him, and the bitterness of his wrath against the man who had ruined his father grew ever more fierce and deep, until sometimes it almost amounted to madness.

On these days nobody had power to soothe him excepting his sister Lorina (for that was the name of Cecil's "Una,") the touch of her hand, the sound of her voice, calmed him in the midst of his ravings, and cheered him in his worst fits of despondency. She, too, it was who kept up the spirits of her mother and young sisters by always making the best of things, however bad they might be.

Cecil grew more deeply in love with her every time he saw her. He often spoke to Lady Eleanor about the Carews, and together they tried to devise some means of helping them; but they well knew it would be a delicate matter to avoid hurting the sensitive pride that shrank from receiving assistance.

At last one day, when Cecil was leaving Geoffrey's room, Lorina asked him to come into the dining-room, and without further preamble said, "I am going to give music lessons. Can you tell me how to get some pupils?"

Delighted with the chance of introducing his own good genius upon the scene, Cecil promised to consult a lady friend, and went off to Lady Eleanor, who called on Mrs. Carew the next day, and broached the subject of the music lessons. She said that she happened to want a lady to teach her own girls music, and would very much like Miss Carew to undertake the charge. As the walk would be rather a long one, it would be pleasanter for her not to come alone, so Lady Eleanor hoped she would bring her sister with her, and she added that if the little girl would join in the children's French lessons it would really be a great thing for them, as they needed more competition to make them work better.

Mrs. Carew colored and winced even at Lady Eleanor's gentle touch, but she was too true a lady not to appreciate the kindness of the offer made to her; so when Lorina came in the whole plan was agreed to, and three times a week the sisters passed the morning in Grosvenor Square. When Geoffrey heard of it he raged and stormed, and declared that something dreadful would happen to his beloved Lorina if she went all that way without his protection; and when he found that he could not prevent it, he relapsed into a settled melancholy, very grievous to see, from which he was seldom roused.

His sister told Lady Eleanor of this new trouble, and asked if she could suggest anything that would do him good.

"He is devoted to music, is he not?" said Lady Eleanor. "Take him to that church near you where they have such sweet devotional music. I think his cure may come through his favorite art."

The next time that the invalid was taking a turn with his sister on the sunny side of the street, she persuaded him to rest in the church porch, just when the afternoon service was beginning. He would not go inside, but sat there for full half an hour listening to the music. It did not seem to rouse him, he said not a word about it, but when they rose to go Lorina thought that his expression was a shade less dejected than before.

Again and again they sat in the church porch on those fair spring afternoons, and as Geoffrey's step grew stronger his eyes grew brighter too. At length, on an April Sunday morning, he let his sister lead him inside the church, and they sat down on one of the back benches.

"The words of the anthem are taken from the fourth chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians, the thirty-first and thirty-second verses," announced one of the officiating clergymen. "Let all bitterness and wrath and anger be put away from you, with all malice; and be ye kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake, hath forgiven you," sang the choir.

Geoffrey shook and trembled as the musical words went through him—through his brain and soul and heart, stirring and awakening him, and convincing him of the sinfulness of the passionate hatred which he had been nursing in his bosom against the man who had wronged him. The voice of God through the sound of the music had spoken to his inmost being, and when it ceased he sank upon his knees, and with a fervent "Good Lord, deliver me," echoed the petition for preservation from pride, hatred, malice and all uncharitableness. And Lorina knew as she walked home with him that her brother was a different man.

He did not attempt to get another clerkship, but found a situation as organist where his services were required frequently. Here, in the enjoyment of his glorious art, his mind entirely recovered its tone—here, with the wonderful sounds of his organ, he softened and soothed and strengthened the hard, the weary, and the heavy-laden. Not in vain for the world had Geoffrey Carew been through the furnace of trouble.

Cecil Anstruther rejoiced at the change which he saw had come over his friend, and rejoiced too at Lorina's happiness. It was astonishing how much time he had spent at the Carews', considering that he had told them he was busy finishing a picture for the Royal Academy, but he always declared that a visit to them helped him very much in his work.

The picture was accepted, and with great interest they looked for the first newspaper critique.

In the very opening column stood the name, "'Una and the Lion'—Cecil Anstruther," described as "the most beautiful and striking picture in the whole exhibition, and one that would raise to the rank of a first-rate figure painter the young artist who had earned some fame already as a painter of animals. The lion," continued the critic, "he doubtless met in his recent travels in the East, but the lady Una is a good and true and lovely English maiden."

"Come out and be congratulated by [illegible] and my family," wrote Geoffrey; and Cecil obeyed the summons.

"You must take us yourself to see your picture," said Lorina.

"Would you like me to do so? Then come with Geoffrey on Tuesday at nine o'clock, before the rooms are crowded, and I will meet you there."

So they went, and at the door met the young artist. He led them on until they came to his room, as they called it, and—"There it is!" he said.

Lorina looked, and before her saw a perfect portrait of herself, with her golden-brown hair rolling away over her shoulders, standing in white-robed purity, with her hand on the lion's head.

She knew that he had painted her because he loved her, and in her mingled joy and trouble put out her hand to steady herself by her brother's arm, but somehow Cecil was there instead.

He held her hand tightly, and bent down and said, "My fair Una," he said, "may I be your Red Cross Knight forever?"

The suddenness of it all had made her dumb, and he got no answer then from his lady's lips, but he read it in her eyes notwithstanding, and it made him very happy.

Three Peculiarities

The superior qualities of Hood's Sarsaparilla are secured by three peculiarities; viz.: First—The combination of remedial agents used. Second—The proportion in which they are mixed. Third—The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured. These are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are unlike any other. The result of these peculiarities is a medicine of unusual strength, which effects cures hitherto unknown. A trial, or even a glance at the article, inspires confidence, because it bears unquestionable indication of a thorough understanding on the part of those who originated it.

A peculiarity of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is obvious to all, is one hundred doses one dollar—an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy. If you are sick, try this excellent medicine. It has given health and happiness to many, and you may reasonably expect it will to you. The cures effected by Hood's Sarsaparilla speak volumes in its praise, and are constantly adding to its influence. No better evidence of its worth is needed, than its [illegible] sale. An article without merit cannot attain the popular demand of this medicine.

"I have frequently tested Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I know it to be an article of merit." M. Bixby, Holland, Mass.

Unknown To Others

"My little girl was afflicted with scrofula. So virulent was the disease, that her neck had been lanced ten times. At the time she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, there was a very large bunch on her face. This we expected to open with the lancet; but to our surprise the bunch began to shrink, and now it has entirely disappeared. Baby is in good flesh, sores all gone, her appetite is good, and she seems as well as any child." William H. Conant, Lyme Centre, N. H.

Attest: I live neighbor to Mr. and Mrs. Conant, and have always known them. The above statement is true. Theodore Balch.

Henry Dickson, wholesale grocer, and proprietor of D[illegible]'s Opera House, Kenton, O., writes: "My wife has been troubled with indigestion, and her blood has been in a poor condition. She has used several bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it has been a great benefit to her."

"For the last twelve or fifteen years I have been a sufferer from a milk leg. I was almost helpless, and could walk only on a level floor. Hood's Sarsaparilla has certainly made me all over new, and cured me of my lameness. I feel twenty years younger than I did." Harriet White, Burnham, Me.

Scrofula

Hood's Sarsaparilla will cure, when in the power of medicine, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Dyspepsia, Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, General Debility, Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaint, Catarrh, Female Weakness, Cancerous Humors, Humors of the Face, Ringworm, Pimples, Syphilitic Affections, Ulcers, Sores, Tumors, Scald Head, and all diseases arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood.

"Appetite poor, bowels all out of order, scrofulous sores on my face and back. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and with three bottles my sores healed, and I am at business again." J. Amberg, Chicago, Ill.

Purify Your Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of sarsaparilla, dandelion, mandrake, cherry bark, uva ursi, dock, and other valuable medicinal agents, long and favorably known for their power in eradicating disease and purifying the blood.

A Druggist says: "It is fortunate to have a preparation like Hood's Sarsaparilla, that you can recommend to your customers, confident it will suit every one."

If you are suffering from Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, or any blood disease, and are desirous of more information regarding the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla, we shall be glad to send you a book containing a few of the wonderful cures effected.
